Jim,

I can appreciate what Joey is experiencing. But I believe we cannot at this time go out and make public comments on either the criminal or internal investigations, which are ongoing. Furthermore, I don't think we can respond to the comments being made through the various websites or through social media. A premature response will or may provoke additional comments. I believe our best position is to wait the outcome of the investigations. At that time we (the RNC) could make an official response based on the investigative findings. For now, less said is best said.

FYI.

I received below from Cst Joe Smyth. He has 27 attachments. He has asked several times for the RNC to publicly make a statement but I can't see how we can say anything while an investigation is underway.

Any thoughts?

Supt Sheppard, wondering if you have heard anything regarding the Saskatoon investigation? Attached, and below links are a snapshot of the daily rhetoric and lies being maliciously published on social and traditional media outlets. The absence of facts, or a basic explanation of police processes, is providing these persons a platform. Sadly, larger groups are buying into their cause. They present lies, misleading innuendo, and fallacious commentary all under the guise of fact – because there is nobody providing any actual facts or legitimate information.

I am told that it may very well be several more months before any investigative findings are released to the public. Is there any reason the RNC cannot speak to the broader aspects of the many questions being asked, that are non-specific to the incident or? Or to the procedural issues, such as risk assessments, use of force training etc etc? This current state is beyond frustrating.

Thanks
Joey
